Several automobile mishaps near Salem brought serious injuries to two persons and less serious injuries to two other motorists late Friday.

J. Schumar, of 922 Brentwood ave., Youngstown, riding with Chismar, escaped with injuries. State Highway Patrolman Carroll Ruben reported.

Apparently Lost Control
The officer said Chismar, the driver, apparently lost control of the truck, which was loaded with beer. The vehicle was owned by the United Brewers association, Youngstown.

The accident was discovered by the passing motorists, Carl L. Mathews of 385 Wilson st., Salem, William E. Gebhart of Ashland, O., and C. L. Williams of Lakewood, O.

In an accident on the Damascus road, just one mile west of Salem, at 3 p. m. Friday, two persons were injured.

Harry Antrum, 48, of 1817 South Union ave., Alliance, driving west, apparently lost control of his machine and it plunged off the highway into a ditch. Antrum suffered concussion, bruises and lacerations when his car was demolished.

Condition Fair
His condition at the Central Clinic today was reported as only "fair."

J. C. Strickler, 79, also of Alliance, a passenger in Antrum's machine, was treated at the Clinic for bruises and lacerations. State Highway Patrolman Homer Hall investigated the mishap.

Automobiles driven by Harold Whitcomb of Fifth st., and C. W. Horgan of 648 North Lincoln ave., collided at the intersection of North Lincoln ave. and Third st. at midnight. No one was injured, but the Columbiana County Motor club reported.

Dr. Gebhardt's body, pierced by four bullets and died only in a nightshirt, was found early Tuesday morning in his swank east-side apartment.

COUNTY LEGION MEN TO ATTEND DISTRICT RALLY

500 From 56 Posts in District to Greet Ohio Commander

SALEM POST WILL RECEIVE PLAQUE

Leetonia, Salem Legionnaires on Day's Program

Representatives of Charles H. Carey post, American Legion, will be among the 500 Legionnaires from 56 posts in the 10th Ohio district to greet Milton D. Campbell of Cincinnati, state Legion commander at a Sunday conference in Greentown. Greentown lies directly north of Canton about eight miles on Route 8.

Present Plaques
A feature of the afternoon program will be presentation of John Elden memorial plaques for outstanding all-around excellence. Class B plaques will be awarded the Alliance and Wellsville posts. Other 10th district posts to receive plaques will include Louisville, Salem, Canton, Lisbon, Steubenville and Mineral City.

Leaders from Columbiana, Stark, Wayne, Holmes, Tuscarawas, Carroll, Coshocton, Harrison and Jefferson counties will participate in the event.

Campbell has been a guiding power in state and national Legion affairs since he attended the 1919 St. Louis caucus which launched the organization. He is a past commander of the Cincinnati post, past national vice commander and past chairman of the national child welfare committee.

As secretary of the board of trustees of the Soldiers and Sailors' Orphan Home at Xenia, he has helped develop this institution for war orphans into one of the finest in the nation.

Campbell's address will close an afternoon program in Greentown High school auditorium. The morning session, also scheduled at the high school, will consist of six classes in Legion activities and administration.

Wheeler To Preside
S. A. Wheeler of Canton district commander, will preside at the conference. Frank Nelson, commander of the Leetonia post, has been assisting Wheeler in planning the event.

The afternoon program will open with a half hour concert by the Canton Post 44 band under the direction of Walter J. Achauer. Following invocation by Rev. D. E. Scott of Canton, former state chaplain, Nelson will welcome Legionnaires to Greentown and Judge C. W. Portman, past commander of the Massillon post, will respond.

Then will come introduction of Legion officers and roll call by W. S. Melinger of Leetonia. Donald Schoep of Warren, state Americanism director, will make a brief address.

William S. Konold of Warren state Legion commander in 1934-35, will present the Elden plaques. Following this ceremony Campbell will deliver the principal address.

In addition to the Canton band, a Cadiz quartet and the Massillon women's auxiliary glee club will be heard.

Classes Scheduled
Classes scheduled for the morning session at 9:30 include service, child welfare and rehabilitation, taught by Charles Marton of Cleveland and L. S. Robbins of Cleveland; organization and membership, taught by Mr. Melinger and James W. Suh of Cleveland; Sons of the American Legion and Boy Scouts, taught by J. Homer Brown of East Liverpool and Edward Howell of Salem; junior baseball, taught by C. W. Culler of Louisville; uniformed groups, taught by E. B. Renner of Coshocton, and community service public relations and law and order, taught by Judge Portman and Judge J. L. Buchanan of Steubenville.

The Greentown women's auxiliary will serve luncheon at the Legion home at 11:30.

Ink Does Trick
CREAT FALLS, Mont. Nov. 16.—Sheriff Guy Pa'al quickly learned who of his 62 prisoners were sawing bars in the night. He threw a bottle of ink at the window where filings could be heard and removed ink-smearing John Tetter and Don Cullen, alleged burglars, to another cell—minus saws.

He summoned the fascist grand council into session at midnight—just 24 hours into effect—to see Italy's course against the boycott, and key products embargo.

The grand council, a Mussolini organism which thrust all other governing bodies of Italy into secondary places, is the nearest thing the nation has to a unit which could assume executive power in the event of Il Duce's death or disability.

It was called to meet in the historic Palazzo Di Venezia.

The entire sanctions situation would be reviewed, an informed source said, with some dramatic announcement to come in the early hours of Sunday, or at least ratification of all measures Il Duce has taken to defeat the purpose of sanctions.

Warren Man, Victim of Disease, Would Sell His Body to Science

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—Woody Murphy, 23, of Warren, O., offered today to sell his body for $5,000 for medical experimentation in a letter to the Cleveland News.

Murphy said he was jobless and a victim of tuberculosis.

"I would like to offer myself for experimentation to some reliable clinic or group of medical men or scientific society," he wrote.

"I do not care how dangerous such an experiment may be because I am very sadly downcast and would take most anything."

"The price I am asking is about $5,000. I will accept less. I do, however, value my life at that much, anyway."

Party Realignment Seen By Patterson

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—Grover Patterson predicted last night a realignment of political parties and asserted that such a change would require high quality leadership from the new party.

Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, spoke before newspaper men and women attending the eighth annual journalism hall of fame dinner. The names of John McLean and Don R. Miellett were added to the hall of fame.

The present alignment of political parties, he said, is meaningless. Forecasting a change, he said:

"When the credit of a man and the courage of a man are destroyed, he is destroyed. With men, so with governments. It is the high duty of newspapers to counsel steadiness, economy, and common sense."

He said government "retirement from interference" with private business would speed the return to prosperity.

Buckeye Republicans Are Planning Uninstructed Delegation

NO CANDIDATES HAVE BEEN NAMED

Ohioans May Go to Convention as "Favorite Son" Group

(By Associated Press)
XENIA, O., Nov. 16.—Speculation on the possibility of Senator Borah of Idaho filing in Ohio for the Republican nomination for president prompted a G. O. P. spokesman to declare today "that would be contrary to the plans of most leaders here."

Congressman Leroy T. Marshall recalled the agreement made by 51 prominent Ohio Republicans, Oct. 4, to send an uninstructed delegation to the national convention next year.

No Candidates Named

"We have refrained from discussing candidates, of course," Marshall said, "but if outside candidates, including Borah, came into Ohio and attempted to file names of candidates for delegates, it would be contrary both to the wishes and the plans of most of the leaders."

Yet it was recalled that young Ohio Republicans recently divided almost evenly in a poll on favorite presidential possibilities between Senator Borah and Governor Landon of Kansas, giving Borah 23 first choice votes and Landon 20.

But Marshall reiterated emphatically "Ohio is hoping for unattached delegates."

A resolution adopted by the 51 leaders said that because of the present lack of crystallization of sentiment as to Republican presidential possibilities, it will probably be advisable that the Ohio delegation to the convention be a "favorite son delegation."

The state central committee still has to act on the resolution, but Chairman Ed D. Schorr of Columbus, has predicted ratification.

Await Recommendations

The leaders made no effort to select a favorite son to whom the delegation would be pledged to conform to Ohio laws. They await recommendations from the state central committee.

Should he decide to file in Ohio, Borah would have to file candidates for delegates in each congressional district early in March, 1936—60 days before the primaries in May.

Marshall said he believed other Ohio Republican leaders would welcome Borah on a speaking tour.

"A speaking tour would not be contrary to plans," he said, "but candidacy in Ohio most certainly would."

Horkins Faces New Job-Finding Worries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Five hundred thousand jobs a week was the task facing Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, today to reach his goal of having 1,500,000 relief recipients at work by Dec. 1.

The latest figures showed 290,194 were given employment in the week ended Nov. 9. This indicated to some officials that Hopkins would not be entirely successful unless added speed was shown in getting projects under way.

At the last count 2,069,339 persons were at work—some 1,490,661 short of the administration's objective.

WINDY CITY LAMENT

In years to come when persons now in or approaching maturity try to explain what happened to government in the years of the great deflation they will tell about the plight of the Chicago school teachers who went payless month after month in 1934.

There was nobility in what the teachers did, but probably less of it than appeared at the time. Most of the teachers had no choice. Either they taught without pay, and hoped something would turn up, or they quit their jobs and knew nothing could turn up. Their plight was, nevertheless, a symbol of the misery caused by the accumulated burden of rotten policies, insane financing and public distrust of spenders working for the government. Because Chicago is the second largest city in the United States, the light of its school teachers got national attention. All over the country, public employees were going without pay on pay days.

Finally, the federal government came to Chicago's aid with a loan of $22,300,000. At last, something had turned up. The teachers had money to spend again. Every thing was rosy—that is, it was rosy until the other day Chicago school teachers learned once more that the school board has spent all its money and that payless pay days are in prospect again. The big trouble with loans is that when the money is spent there must be another loan. It looks as though the country would be pitying the unpaid Windy City teachers this winter about the same as it did last winter, the winter before and the winter before that.

STIRRING

It is a certainty that opponents of the Roosevelt administration will make an issue of expanded federal spending. Consequently, it is a certainty that the administration will attempt to cover up this vulnerable spot in its defense with some kind of political protection.

One of the hardest protective devices is investigation. It is, therefore, without much approval and with no surprise that the country hears of an inquiry by the house committee on expenditures in the executive departments to determine what can be done to cut costs and increase efficiency. Real approval will be in order when expenditures begin to shrink. The inquiry means nothing, in itself. Results would mean a great deal, but results are not guaranteed. The Democratic chairman of the house committee on expenditures, Rep. John J. Cochrane of Missouri is merely assisting in his party's campaign up to the point where he can claim that his committee and the Democratic majority controlling it have accomplished something tangible. Good faith, unfortunately, cannot be taken for granted.

In the meantime, taxpayers of both political parties may dwell in a grateful mood on the sweet uses of opposition in the government. The approaching election and the certainty that critics of the Roosevelt administration will make political capital of enormous federal expenditures and waste automatically create a necessity of being more cautious. The trend toward a constantly higher rate of spending is halted at least momentarily. It is good politics to have investigators stirring around among the bills looking for something that can be cut out. If they can find something and act upon it, so much the better.

THE STARS SAY

For Sunday, November 17

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of several interesting events of casual importance, with all pertaining to social, cultural, mystical and kindred aspirations uppermost. In all these there is an element of the intriguing, subtle or secret, with need of a degree of caution against subterfuge or hidden jealousy. The emotional faculties will seek expression in love affairs or in art, music and poetry.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather mediocre year, with transactions with mergers, rings, secret societies or diplomatic circles engaging the attention. An element of intrigue or secrecy prevails in all affairs.

A child born on this day may be peculiarly talented, with a predisposition to gain its ends by tact, diplomacy or strategy rather than direct methods.

For Monday, November 18

Monday's astrological forecast, while presaging a sudden precipitation of events that may call for radical change or travel, yet is not without its perplexities. While the change promises excellent opportunities, yet there are signs of delays, impediments, financial difficulties or friction in employment. Rashness and ill-temper complicate these.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of conflicting circumstances, with problems and perplexities in making the wise choice. While a sudden opportunity for radically improving affairs may be presented, yet there are also signs of depression, delays and obstructions with financial hazards. Impetuosity and reckless moves will not benefit or an angle where employment and money matters are involved.

A child born on this day will be bold, adventurous, skillful and independent, at times having great urges but becoming easily discouraged and depressed.

Notable nativity: Gatti-Curci, opera singer.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Everyone now and then should mull up from the deep fathoms of slumber between the hours of 4 and 5 a. m. It's the climactic hour when all existence seems to pause as though swooped into sudden, bewildering stillness. Poised to plunge or go on.

Hospitals recognize it and nurses become especially tipsy. It is the hour when the slender cord of life so often snaps. The hour when the city noises crescendo from the slow melody of the pavan to strident jazz. The hour when night throws off its shadowy cloak to become another day.

Everything seems portentous. One is riding betwixt a world that has gone and a world being born. No coloring is so exquisite as that suffusing sheen of an approaching day. This morning I saw a star twinkle out and in the frozen quiet it became a flash of drama.

A fluff of cloud that ordinarily would pass unnoticed took on the quality of wonder, changing from gray to sea water green to shell pink and then in a chiffling burst of splendor to the blood-red poppy. A prelude to that disk of polished copper that is the sun.

Morning's benediction, too, ferries memories across the Stygian blackness. In the mental cud-chewing of this serene hour I thought somehow of a bantering, dancing girl we saw one night in a sea-front cabaret in Marseilles. Our boat pulled out at dawn and we were making a night of it. Upon invitation she came to our table, giggled over efforts to speak a few words in our tongue and was gone. She had no especial beauty or charm. It was a trivial inclusion in a welter of several weeks travel excitement. Yet whenever the four at that cafe get together one or the other never fails to recall the dancing girl. One wonders why such a lasting impression.

Faces. Incidents. Faces. Drifting out of the past in arabesque array. The croupier at the Monte Carlo Sporting Club, a Chicago newsboy who knew Dick Griner, so long abroad he spoke English with a French accent. The nobly sired son of a Liverpool ship builder who became a ratchit drug addict, a shuffling guide for the ratty bals masque in the infamous rue de Lappe. The day Bernhard took 17 jows at the Palace. The fire-eating composing room foreman, Jack Anderson, of the old Evening Mail. That Fred Stone entrance at the Globe where he shot up through the floor in a foam of home made beer. The faked murder Ray Long and Jim Quirk staged at a dinner for Edgar Wallace at the Metropolitan, frightening everybody still save Wallace. The "Building a Sairway to Paradise" finale in the Scandals. Montague Glass laughing at his own hilarious Jewish stories.

And swirling across from some forgotten latitude a dinner at Tony Faust's in St. Louis. And Lillian Russell, on tour, in a sweep-of-mink entrance after theatre trailed by Weber and Fields in person. Doc Perry's back-of-the-prescription-case haven on Park Row and his three better customers, Don Clarke, Frank O'Malley and Joe O'Neill. The freakish variety turns at Hammerstein's—Don the Talking Dog, The Stokes' Shooting Show Girls and Solly the ticket-taker. Charlie Van Loan's baseball stories. Crowds watching the basement presses in Herald Square. The soda fountain at Siegel and Cooper's. Winter Garden Sunday nights which spawned the first master of ceremony. Visiting ball players lounging in front of the Ansonia, small town fashion. When hectic night life had its peak at a place called The Pekin, where Vincent Lopez first played "Nola." Ah, memories!

That period when the wind was in our faces! New York an hourly adventure with a May wine tingle. The world metropolis jugging a silhouette of high spires against a blue sweep of ocean. And Broadway the rue of rues, gleaming white like the cleat of an ancient and honorable wound. A street that had not begun its nickleodeon slide. It had tradition, pride and pomp. Fifth avenue was signless with no shops or stores above 46th street. Mrs. Belmont's coach and high spirited four caracolled southward at the 5 o'clock promenade. There was an awareness of life. Everybody wanted to rise, get on, be somebody.

The good old days! Of course, they were. Days of such opulence, so spangled with hope. No communistic jeers for Washington and Jefferson principles. No rude and throttling taxation. Days I do not believe will ever come again to you or to me, to our children or their children.

C. R. Baker returned Thursday from Warren where he explained the organization and plan of the Salem Business association, one of the most successful in Ohio.

Frank Stratton, aged carpenter, fell 30 feet from the roof of the William Morris property on Broadway this afternoon, sustaining a fracture of the left leg.

Thieves forced a widow in the office of the Satterthwaite feed store on Broadway Wednesday, opening and made away with a small amount of money, stamps and some fees.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

(Issue of Nov. 16, 1915)

Twenty-one families were treated by the Salem Council of Social agencies during the month of October.

By provisions of a city ordinance given its first reading by city council Tuesday evening, City Auditor George Holmes will in the future receive $75 a month for his services, an increase of $15 over his present salary.

On Nov. 17 the national banks of this city will be called upon to increase their deposits with the federal reserve at Cleveland fifty percent.

U. S. Marine Corps Celebrates 160th Anniversary

Observance of the 160th anniversary of the United States Marine Corps this month recalls the vivid and eventful history of that famous organization. Marines came into being more than 300 years ago when their value was discovered as an auxiliary to the ship's force at the time the heavy gun replaced the ram as the chief weapon of naval offense. Uncle Sam's marines have served with distinction since their organization during the American Revolution. They are headed by Major General John Henry Russell whose headquarters are at Washington.

BALDNESS

PERHAPS YOU have wondered about peculiar cases of baldness in which the hair had disappeared in spots. There may have been several irregular but perfectly bare patches on the scalp.

This odd disorder is given a big name — "alopecia areata". In some cases new hair may grow into these patches. When it does it is usually white. This gives one who has dark hair an unusual and perhaps striking appearance. There may be a streak down the middle of the scalp, or perhaps an overhanging lock of perfectly white hair. Alopecia areata is not always confined to the scalp, but may involve the beard, eyebrow or mustache.

May Follow Shock The cause of the disorder remains more or less obscure. Sometimes it follows severe shock to the nervous system. It may attack more than one member of a family, and for this reason some authorities regard it as hereditary.

Strange as it may seem, epidemics of alopecia areata have been reported in England, France, Germany and Italy. Such cases, however, are due to some contagious or infectious skin trouble. It is probable too, that in many of the ordinary cases the fault lies in some disturbance of the so-called ductless glands.

Often the disorder is associated with exophthalmic goiter and failure of ovarian function. A case of alopecia areata was reported in a young girl who had menstrual difficulties.

The Torch Be Yours

John McCrae's immortal lines of the dead in Flanders Fields are recalled by this gigantic torch, memorial to American war dead, rising at Neuville Saint Vaast near Arras in the north of France.

ficulty When given appropriate treatment there was noticeable improvement in hair growth as well as a return of menstrual regularity. When more is learned of the ductless glands, it may well be the nature of many now mysterious disorders will become known.

Some believe that alopecia may follow from a localized infection. For this reason there should be a careful examination of the teeth, nasal sinuses, ears and other organs that might be diseased. All such centers of infection must be returned to normal condition.

General measures should be taken, too, to improve the general resistance of the body. Likewise, it is well to correct a run-down condition due to a diet lacking in important minerals and vitamins.

Does alopecia mean permanent disfigurement?

Recovery Chances The chances for complete recovery are good if hair growth begins within two years after onset of the disorder. The outlook is not so favorable if after this period of time no hair has appeared. But cases have been known to recover which have existed for twenty or thirty years.

Avoid the use of any medication of the scalp and hair unless it has been recommended by your physician. The trouble may be made worse by the unwise application of certain chemicals. No application to the scalp should be used if there is danger of its causing irritation of the remaining hair roots.

In persistent cases of alopecia, beneficial results are sometimes obtained by x-ray treatment. Whether it is wise to employ it will be decided by your physician.

LOVE DENIED

by LOUISE LONG AND ETHEL DOHERTY

CHAPTER XXXIII

Kent was correct in his surmise. Some time Julie had hired a former high social promiscuity in New York and London. Now bankrupt, to act as companion and mentor.

When the long-coveted invitation came Julie rehearsed painstakingly for her debut in Society. She was to wear black velvet, for a month-end sale—it still set off her white skin and dark hair better than anything else. It had the advantage which Julie never counted on making her look even more appealingly to men.

But the startlet's lately acquired fall had her when she went to the drawing-room and saw Standing. The memory of the hysterical scene she had enacted here in this room before this rushed over Julie in a wave of intolerable chagrin. She remembered her faltering spirits with her first as she saw Sharlene toward her.

"So nice to have you," murmured Standing. "Mother, this is Miss DeVore."

"Ah, I've met you before!" said Standing unexpectedly. "Julie reddened painfully under the perfect make-up."

Sharlene glanced at her mother in surprise. "Why, Mother, are you sure?"

"Yes indeed! I had the privilege to observe a star in the making. She smiled kindly at the girl put out her hand. 'I congratulate you, Miss DeVore. I know you have a great talent.'"

Julie suddenly hated Mrs. Standing almost as much as she did her mother. She was so furious that she could not speak. She bit her lip as Mrs. Standing released her hand and stepped forward to greet another guest.

"Oh, Ernest," Mrs. Standing said, "you must come and see my grins—They moved off together."

Julie must hear the story some day. Sharlene was saying to her, "how you and Mother met."

"Now I want you to know—"

Sharlene called a young man from the archway, holding the hand of a laughing woman in green. "I take in Phyllis!" A second young man held the girl's hand.

"Wait for me a minute, won't you?" Sharlene said to Julie. "I'll be back to see you."

Julie swallowed hard and watched from under sulky lashes the tall shining figure of her hostess. She was fiercely jealous of her, that lovely mouth, serene and kind of that glorious hair, of the whole radiant woman smiling as she had smiled in those sketches of Stuart's. Julie felt inferior in every inch of her own small body, despite of the costly clothes which she had made her so complacent. She felt not only inferior but secure.

However, Kent Damerell approached suddenly with an air of proprietorship that was heartening. "DeVore! You're looking splendid!"

That sounded like a line from a play Julie thought, remembering how she had fancied this room as a movie set that other time she had come here. The startlet was searching frantically for the proper ultra-English answer. "Oh! Thank you," she managed to say. "I'm chawmed to be heah." It sounded as if she were speaking a piece, and succeeded only in making her the more furious as Sharlene, gracious and poised returned to her.

"My wife," Kent was saying easily, "is such a fan of yours that she always refers to you here at home as 'Julie.'"

"Oh! Julie survey her hostess with insolent eyes. 'Perhaps it's because she's heard it so often. I'm a very, very good friend of Stuart Pennington's.'"

Scratch! Claw! Julie was exultant for an instant until she realized that Mrs. Damerell was quite unmoved.

"Yes," Sharlene was saying with her quiet smile, "you were so good to Stuart. I shall never forget it."

Kent who was embarrassed and annoyed by the mention of Pennington's name, glanced irritably at his wife, as if that intrusion had been her fault.

Julie was acutely conscious that she was distinctly "out of place," she stood tongue-tied and defiant until Sharlene rescued her.

"Kent you must take Miss DeVore around and see that she meets everybody. I want her to have a good time. I asked Bob Arniston particularly to amuse her."

Arniston! Julie nearly swooned at the sound of that important name. Why, this was the Inner Circle, the holy of holies! She gathered herself together desperately to make the most of her rare and shining opportunity.

But la DeVore found herself, after all, only an object of veiled curiosity to the impeccable Mr. Arniston and to the others as well. They were polite—and so pleasant—but they had so few things in common with her that they fell to talking amiably about her profession. . . . Mr. Arniston at one side of her at dinner, and a Mr. Van Court on the other, deplored academically the passing of the pantomimic art of the old silent pictures. They argued hotly about a renaissance in dramatic art—with each other. . . . Julie sat silently between them while their talk whirled bewilderingly around her head on the esoteric and conatus of her job.

After dinner Lucien captured Sharlene for a few minutes when she had got the bride players down to work, and they strolled up and down on the terrace.

"I haven't seen you since New Orleans, Sharlene."

"That's right. You started us off on this mad movie business!" She shook her head at him while grinning ruefully.

"I didn't imagine your husband would really take the idea seriously. But he's head over heels in it, they tell me. He's got the enthusiasm and the grit to carry it through I believe."

"Yes. It's a game you see. He's good at games."

During the short walk, Lucien glanced into the drawing room through the French windows and observed with a chuckle.

"Funny to see little Julie—here. She's so well-behaved I'm afraid she'll topple over backward!"

Sharlene smiled and then stashed. "Of course, she brings Stuart Pennington back very close, Lucien."

That afternoon up at his little house— Her voice faltered.

"Yes," observed Lucien impressively, "but Julie's climbed a long way since that."

Sharlene, seemingly lost in thought, sat down on the balcony. "Tell me about Stuart," she said with sudden determination.

"What about him?" Lucien seated himself beside her.

"I mean—is he working?"

"Yes."

"But—Lucien, I thought, when I released him from bondage he'd blossom right out. Instead, he hasn't been heard from—not a picture in all these months! I've been afraid—"

There was a long silence before Sharlene added: "You know, Lucien, even though I'm the happiest woman in the world, I've always got the ache in my heart—and the humiliation—of knowing that I hurt Stuart."

Lucien did not answer.

"I wish," she went on wistfully, "that I could know beyond a doubt, that he is completely recovered. I'd rather be sure that he—hated me than to fear that he might still be caring—and so is unable to work—"

"Do you mean that, Sharlene, or are you just talking?"

She turned her dark, earnest eyes on him and clasped his hand. "Oh, Lucien, you don't know what it would mean to me!"

"It's pretty stiff medicine, but—well, here's what he told me. He said Sharlene had died and left him on a ship that passed in the sunset."

"Yes?" she broke the pause that followed. "That's true, I guess. Go on."

"He said he remembered that Sharlene with great love—but that he hated the Sharlene of the later months—"

"Hated?"

"He said—hated. And that he was glad he had got rid of that feeling and now was merely indifferent."

She was silent a long time. "I deserve it," she said briefly at last. "But can he work now?"

"Yes, he's all right, now. Go and see a picture of his that's to be hung in Las Palmas del Rey Gallery, this coming week. That'll convince you."

"Thank you, Lucien. You've been a brutal but kind surgeon."

"You asked for it!"

"Yes and I'm relieved. I don't feel so guilty about my own deep happiness. Shall we go in?"

Julie was just thinking that she would scream if she had to listen to these high-brows any longer, when Kent hurried up.

"Here! Here!" he interferred laughingly. "You fellows are wasting a divine opportunity! You mustn't talk shop to her. She's marvelous at the better art of flirting!"

He bore her off to another room where he could have her to himself, and—

La DeVore was surprised to find that Kent Damerell was quite vulnerable. He wasn't just being the polite host, as she thought at first. He was actually falling for her. And how that revived her!

"Oh, Mr. Damerell!" she sighed, rolling her big eyes at him and heaving her white shoulders entrancingly with the force of her sigh, "you were more than kind to rescue me."

"Those beastly bores—loving the sound of their own voices," Kent said disgustedly and then smiled indulgently at her. "You're so little," he said, and let a caressing note creep into his voice, "so much littler than you look on the screen."

Julie thrust out a tiny foot in its absurd slipper where he could not fall to see it. "Oh, dear," she murmured plaintively. "I sometimes wish I were big—like your wife. She's so handsome—and commanding. You know what I mean. She'll make a grand dowager in a few years."

The claws were out again, but so cleverly sheathed in silencing black velvet that Kent did not recognize them.

"You know," he said softly, leaning closer. "I've looked at millions of pictures lately, and I think you've got the best technique of any girl on the screen—in love scenes."

"Do you?" she murmured. "Well, I've had a lot of practice."

"Some of the actors I have to kiss," she confided childishly, "are just horrid! Then I kiss of someone I love terribly to kiss and so I get away with the scene."

"I see. Some one particular man?"

She flashed a provocative look at him and lowered her lashes quickly. "Wouldn't you love to know?" she said tantalizingly.

Dance music drifted in from a balcony. Some of the guests were dancing in the other rooms. Kent got up and he'd his arms out silently to Julie. She melted into them and they began to sway rhythmically together in the space between the bookcases. After a while he held her closer.

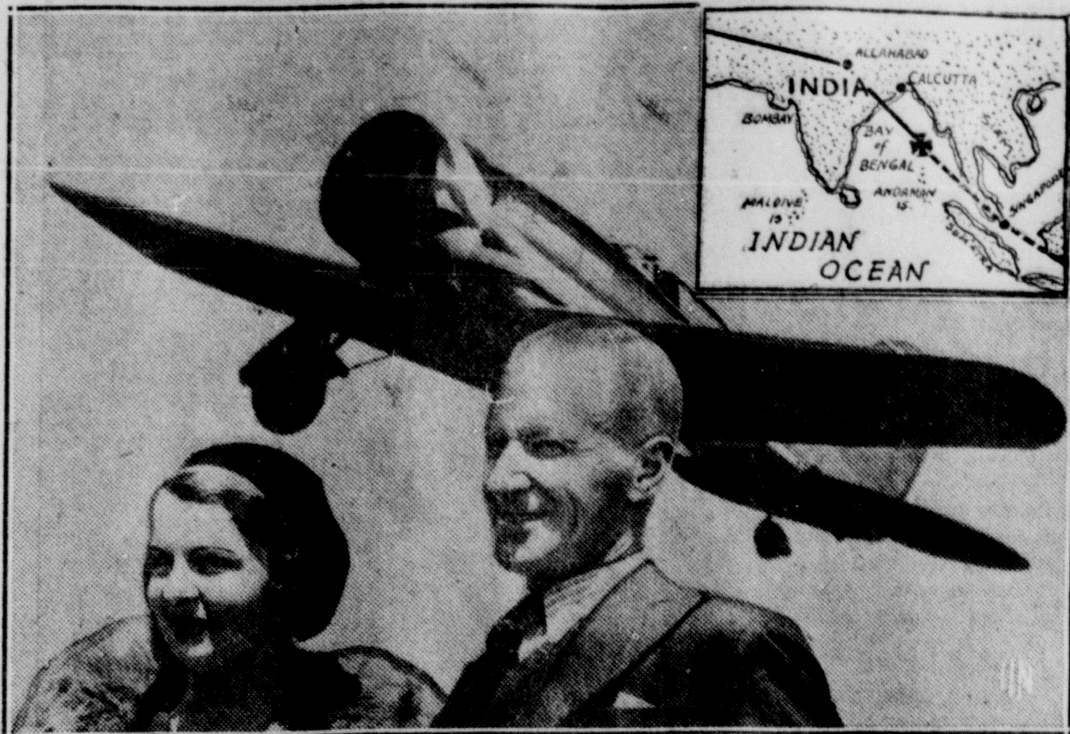

"You're so little," he whispered, "and light. I hardly know I've got you."

Sharlene came into the library presently and stood for a minute watching the slow, languorous, seductive performance of her husband and la DeVore before they saw her.

"Sorry to interrupt," Mrs. Damerell said untroubled, "but the Love-joys are leaving early. Kent—"

Julie fancied she caught a slight note of irritation in Sharlene's voice and it elated her. So, the lady was still crazy about this bozo—and he was the kind to stray away from Mamma. Perfect! She'd pay back a few old scores now, on her own and on Stuart's account.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeanette Young Norton

Even if some of us may refuse to divulge our exact age, we don't like our birthdays to go unheeded just the same. Greetings and gifts are welcome and so is the birthday party with its beautiful cake.

If there are children in the family there just must be a celebration and so, even if the ordinary meal is to be served, you should add some ice cream and so build a party about a cake. If you won't have the proper number of candles, let a single big one suffice or "shoot" on the initial with a pastry gun.

To make the birthday cake a delight to the eye as well as to the palate, the newest "party trick" in decoration is crystallized. To make the "edible diamonds" for your cake, select one cup of boiled white rice and be sure the grains are whole and dry. Boil one cup sugar in half cup of water until the syrup spins a thread. Drop in the rice and stir with a fork until rice is thoroughly coated. Drain on paper and use "with desire" to decorate your cake. Ten drops of vegetable coloring may be added to the syrup.

Has Fruit Filling

For a splendid fruit filling combine one-third of a cup each of chopped dates and chopped raisins, also three-quarters of a cup of sugar and one cup of water in a saucepan. Cook over low flame for 15 minutes or until thick enough to spread. Cool, then add one-third cup of broken walnut meats, one tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon lemon rind. Chill before spreading. It makes about one and one-half cups of filling.

If you are too busy to bake an elaborate cake you will find that your grocer has prepared fruit cake mixture which comes right in the tin you bake it in—all ready to pop into the oven. Add an egg and liquid according to directions—any kind of fruit ranging from water to fancy fruit juice or cooking wine.

"The Dying Drummer Boy" was the title of a reading by Mrs. Stoudt and Mrs. Stratton read an article written by Walter Williams, a missionary in China.

The meeting next month will be held at the home of Mrs. Lydia Brantingham in Winona.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

CLOSET ACCESSORIES have become a necessity as well as a great convenience. The small closet, well fitted, will hold more clothes and these in better condition than the large closet into which things are just thrown, and hung anywhere, anyway.

With the new attachments, the littlest cubbyhole can be put to use. Whatever the size of your closets and the number installed in your house, the most should be made of them.

If you have a great deal of small baggage, such as suit cases and dressing bags, it is best to have a carpenter build a simple cabinet, sectioned off with the partitions removable, so that any type of small luggage can be stored. Bags and cases placed on the floor or shelves of the clothes closet merely eat up space and very often become damaged.

Closet for Treasures

If there are children in the family and they are of the type that likes to hoard all sorts of treasures, then try and make room for a utility closet, made to hold all sorts of your youngsters' belongings ranging from birds' nests to baseball equipment.

If there is a large hall closet, then it might be a good idea to subdivide it, putting in shelves to hold games, cigarettes and other supplies likely to be needed for the living room. Maybe the partition may be made wide enough so that two folded card tables can be slipped in, one above the other.

If there is an extra closet, then see if you can't make it into a good storehouse for blankets and curtains. Have the carpenter make some deep drawers at the bottom, and store blankets in these. Have a rack made so that the curtains may hang on this without becoming wrinkled or musty. Also have a special compartment to hold long, dainty rods.

And if you are keeping cleaning equipment in various parts of the house, why not try and find room for another special cabinet in which all dusters, soaps, powders and their cleaning materials may be housed. This will tend to make cleaning an easier job as very often such time and energy is lost looking for different cleaning equipment.

When it comes to clothes closets, try and utilize space as much as possible so that the things in the closet have their full share of space. If the closet is small, you will find at your favorite department store or well-stocked hardware store an excellent device to be hung on the inside door of the closet with space for ties, shoes and coats. Shoe rods should be hung on the inside door of even the large closet, for shoes placed on these rods can be seen at a glance and there is no chance of the shoes being on the floor or being crushed by a package or box, as often happens. Of course, delicate dandier slippers should be kept in containers of their own.

New Hat Boxes

When it comes to hats, you will find that there are round hat boxes of cellulose, which are much better than hat stands as the hats are protected, yet can be seen at a glance.

When buying hangers you will find that there are all types, from those that take a large overcoat to others designed to hold an evening frock.

Buy plenty of good garment bags. You'll find that these are a true economy as clothes will be kept clean and fresh. There are special bags to hold fur coats and furs, as well as special hangers for furs. But don't buy haphazard. Know just what clothes are in the closets and buy accordingly. No matter how nice or inexpensive or useful an item may be, it is not for you if you can't make good use of it.

the years. And get a good tarnish-proof chest for silver.

At aid to happiness is to know that there is one corner in the house or apartment that is just dedicated to the mistress of the house, where she may rest, work or study in surroundings that are harmonious to her. Even a tiny room would have enough space for a small desk and bookcase, a comfy chair and a table with one's pet photographs and maybe a picture or two from childhood days. If one is building, it is wise to allow for such a room.

Don't be satisfied with just closets, even if they are roomy. See to it that closets are properly equipped. It is worth the outlay for clothes. Possessions will last longer and frayed tempers will be avoided because of mislaid things. If possible, let there be a large wardrobe closet, properly fitted and dedicated to the master of the house. Brown and white is a good color scheme for this, or deep brown and dark yellow. See to it that the linen sets its own closet, however tiny, and have the closet painted with that divine lavender-perfumed paint or keep bags of lavender in the linen closet.

The Inspiration of the Bible
In speaking of the book that proves the Bible inspired one of the greatest living Bible students recently said: "The trouble today is that thousands of people try to live a Christian life who depend on their knowledge of the Word of God on the man who preaches in the pulpit. You have no business to depend upon any man for your knowledge of the Word of God. You and I must read the Word for ourselves. Read your Bible regularly; read it consecutively, not anywhere you happen to open. Where are you to begin? In Genesis. Are you troubled about the inspiration of the Bible and do you want to know a good book on the subject? I know a splendid book that settles the question. The Bible. I come to this book on my knees and I am ashamed of how little I know of it, but what I do know enables me to realize that it is a precious Book."

Columbiana Grace Reformed Church

Advancement Over Century And A Quarter

Having its origin in a series of meetings in a small hotel, the Grace Reformed church of Columbiana has grown steadily over almost a century and a quarter, advancing step by step, progressing materially and retaining the spiritual fervor which marked its inception.

The earliest authentic record of the Reformed church in Columbiana dates back to about 1813, according to historical information compiled by members of the church.

The church began when a minister by the name of Rev. Mahnesmith organized a Sunday school and held church services and catechetical instruction at a small hotel that was located where the Park House now stands.

Rev. Mahnesmith continued his work there until about 1830. In the meantime, his band of worshippers steadily grew larger. In 1814 land was donated by Joshua Dixon for the construction of a church building.

The energy of the congregation was applied to this task and it was accomplished, the structure being of hewn logs.

In 1821, a movement was started by members of the Reformed and the Lutheran congregations to build a new union church.

This structure was completed and dedicated in 1822. It was a brick building, erected on the site where Grace church now stands. At the first communion held in this church, 60 new members were received.

Rev. Henry Sonnedeker became pastor some time after the building was completed and put into use and he remained as its head for a number of years.

Rev. Palsgrave succeeded him, being pastor from 1845 to 1855, and thereafter, for a number of years, Rev. Aaron Warner supplied the congregation.

In 1859 Rev. Reemer was pastor of the church and he following year, Rev. James Rinehart began his pastorate. Under his leadership the church took on new life, which is felt to this day.

In 1867 the Reformed church adherents bought out the interests of the Lutherans in the church built in 1822 and the following year built a new church which is a part of the structure used today.

In 1870 Rev. Rinehart closed his pastorate and his service to the Lord, after receiving 70 new members during that year.

Rev. Hibish was pastor from 1870 to 1872 and Rev. John Kendig served the congregation from 1872 to 1878, followed by Rev. H. T. Spangler for about two years.

Then came the pastorate of Rev. J. H. Bomberger, who guided the congregation for about 16 years. Under his leadership and spiritual teachings, the church was strengthened and the membership was greatly increased.

In 1898 Rev. A. V. Casselman became pastor. Grace Reformed church took an active interest in the foreign mission field as its scope of activities widened and it became the first Reformed church to support entirely a missionary in China.

Rev. Fred Cromer succeeded Rev. Casselman as pastor of Grace church and he, in turn, was succeeded by Rev. George Welsh, who served for a number of years.

During his pastorate, fire of undetermined origin destroyed the interior of the building, as well as the furnishings.

In 1906 the building was remodeled, a pipe organ was installed and new furnishings procured.

In 1907, Rev. William Yenser became pastor and served for nine years, succeeded by Dr. Theodore Wright, the latter remaining for four years.

Rev. A. S. Glessner supplied for a year after the and was in charge for almost 10 years, serving the congregation faithfully until his health failed and death soon followed.

Rev. A. S. Glessner supplied for a year after the death of a Dr. Wiest, conducting services until the pastorate of Rev. Stanley Fritz, which began in 1932.

Rev. Fritz' work among the young people of the church has been remarkable in the three years he has been in Columbiana.

The membership at the present is over 500 and the earnest effort put forth by the pastor argues well for the future of the church.

Will Of Master Must Have Place In Lives Of All

Marjorie Harroff will be the leader of the Junior Luther League of the Holy Trinity Lutheran church when it meets tomorrow.

Other services for the church tomorrow and announcements for the week are as follows:

Sunday school 9:45. (Extra 1:1-6) Lewis Hirst, Supt.

There are affliction and suffering in the world. God cannot be blamed for their presence. Through the disobedience of man, either directly or indirectly, this world in some phases is a vale of tears. Yet there may be some real blessings in suffering. The captivity of Israel proved to be a blessing in disguise. It is not the easy life from which may come the richest blessings but the life wherein is found some hardship and testing. No diamond in the rough can sparkle its best without going through the process of grinding and polishing. The purposes of God may take centuries to reach fulfillment but God is guided by an unchanging purpose. God never allows His blessings and holy plan to be sidetracked. God's will must have a place in our lives.

Morning worship 11:00. Sermon, "Of what Must Life Consist?"

Life to some people is merely a physical existence and its attending interests. That philosophy is not even true or safe for this earthly existence. Life is more than the bodily and mental processes of the very day existence. Life is measured by some as the accumulation of possessions is reached, or as the attainment of fame and renown is reached. Life is more than that. Life is more than eating, drinking, working and sleeping. The best of the field may be very well satisfied with this limited existence. Man's higher in the plan and purpose of God than the lower animals. The soul and spirit must be recognized and taken into consideration. God must be given a place. The Church must be considered. Life to be complete must reach out to the eternal God in its interests and plans.

Services for the St. John A. M. E. church announced today by J. E. Cooper minister, are as follows:

Sunday school 9:45. Lesson subject, "The Return From Captivity." Golden Text—The Lord hath done great things for us; wherefore we are glad; Psalm 126.

"This lesson teaches us that we should not be narrow in trying to restrict God to just such lines of action as suit our beliefs or creeds. God said to Moses once 'I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion.' It was bitter experience for the proud people of Judea to go to Babylon as captives. This humiliation was necessary in order that Judah might repent and find the way back to God."

Gospel Message, 11 a. m. "The Hand of the Lord Is Upon The For Good That Seek Him."

"Out of the darkness of captivity, the promised Messiah, the star of hope, shown more clearly. Things we have experienced as our burdens, our difficulties, our struggles, our sufferings, are the things that teach us."

Announcements
There will be no worship service. Mid-week prayer service will be held at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday. The place of meeting will be announced at the services tomorrow.

BUCKEYE HOPES IN BIG TEN HANG ON TODAY'S TILT

60,000 People Expected to Witness Illinois
Invasion

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—Ohio's hopes for a share of the Big Ten football title hung in the balance today as the Bucks clashed with the fast but light Illinois eleven.

The Ohioans had a decided edge in weight, but they had the same advantage a year ago when the Illinois dropped them from the championship chase with a 14 to 13 setback.

No Idea of Lineup
Coach Bob Zuppke of the invaders declared his squad was riddled by injuries, that he had practically no idea what his starting lineup would be and that he hoped Ohio could be held to a lower score than the 85 to 7 total it rolled up against Drake.

The canny Dutchman grinned as he spoke, however, probably remembering that his team won a year ago when it didn't have a chance. The Illinois have but one conference victory to their credit this season, but it was one of the most impressive wins of the campaign.

The westerners upset Michigan's up-and-coming eleven by 3 to 0 a week ago, holding the Wolverines to one first down and a total gain of 10 yards from rushing. Ohio is tied for the league lead with three conference wins.

24th Game
A crowd of about 60,000 was expected for the contest, the 24th in the series between the teams. Of previous encounters Illinois has won a dozen, Ohio nine and the others were ties. Only once, in 1931, has Ohio been able to score more than 13 points against Zuppke's team.

Ohio had its "Jumping Joe" Williams, and Illinois its "Jumping Joe" Jewett Cole as the "Ace in the Hole." Williams, leading scorer in the Big Ten with 60 points in six games, will be kept on the sidelines until the Bucks get into scoring territory.

Cole a 138-pounder, will take the place of Lowell Spurgeon, injured sparkplug of the Illinois backfield, as the main scoring threat for the invaders.

Even Money Bet
Both Zuppke and Coach Francis A. Schmidt came out with the usual pre-game statements that they had little chance to win. Even money was bet on the contest. This was the first game this year that the Bucks have not been on the favored side.

Game time was 2 p. m. and here are the probable lineups:
ILLINOIS Pos. OHIO STATE
Cantwell L.E. Wendt
Anilla L.T. Hamrick
Gryboski L.O. Karher

GRIDIRON MENU IN OHIO IS TOP

Many Outstanding Tilts
With Prospects for Upsets

College football rose to a new season's peak in Ohio today. The gridiron menu was studded with outstanding games and plenty of prospects for upsets.

Outside of the No. 1 attraction, Ohio State and Illinois, the Ohio U.-Cincinnati battle ranked next in the interest of fans. They are two of the mightiest teams in southern Ohio football history, each boasting a victory over Big Ten competition.

The game will have important bearing on the Buckeye conference championship race.

Difficult Task
Baldwin-Wallace, high powered favorite to cop the Ohio conference crown, faced a difficult task in the fracas with Findlay. The Miami-Dartmouth game was expected to attract thousands of thrill-seeking fans. Akron looked forward to one of the choicest games of the day, the skirmish between Muskingum and Akron U.

Ohio Northern tangled with Mt. Union at Alliance. It was the first game between the two since 1928, and the Polar Bears were a real treat to the Purple's Ohio conference championship hopes.

Heidelberg at Wilkesburg, Marshall at Ohio Wesleyan and Denison at Reserve were among the other leading games in the Buckeye State.

Kent State hoped for long-sought revenge against Ashland. Hiram met Bowling Green. Other games included Capital at Oberlin; Assumption at Bluffton; Case at John Carroll; Buffalo at Toledo; Oberlin at Kenyon.

Wooster at W. & J.
Wooster went to W. & J. hoping to redeem the reputation of Ohio teams. Defiance played Detroit Tech.

Xavier completed its week's work last night by trouncing St. Louis U. 13-0 in St. Louis. The game was played in a cold drizzle but both sides attempted many passes.

Xavier 14 and St. Louis 18.
Fullback Jim Farasey intercepted a pass and ran 45 yards to give Xavier its first touchdown. A series of running and passing plays resulted in another tally by the fullback a few minutes later.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Most of the interest in today's five-game Western conference football program centered around the undefeated leaders, Minnesota and Ohio State, against Michigan and Illinois, respectively.

The Minnesota powerhouse was expected to take care of Michigan at Ann Arbor, probably after a full-sized struggle, before around 40,000 spectators, seeking revenge for last year's upset 14 to 13 defeat, Ohio State, beaten only by Notre Dame this season, shaped up as too powerful for Illinois. An other traditional battle, the game figured to attract between 45,000 and 50,000 spectators to the big stadium at Columbus.

Favored Over Badgers
Northwestern, victorious over Notre Dame last week in one of the season's prize upsets, was favored over Wisconsin at Evanston. The meeting had the makings of another lively tussle, however, as the Badgers appeared to have found themselves in trimming Purdue last Saturday. The crowd prospect was 15,000.

Indiana was after its first conference victory of the year at Chicago. The Hoosiers, however, had to cope with a large problem in Jay Berwanger, the Maroons' great halfback making his final appearance on Stagg field. Around 15,000 fans were expected for Berwanger's farewell. In the fifth game, Iowa and Purdue appeared so unevenly matched that there was no such thing as a favorite. The Hawkeyes had the better record, but Purdue figured to regain form after losing to Minnesota and Wisconsin. Another crowd of 15,000 was anticipated at Ross-Ade stadium, Purdue's battle ground.

White Wins Southern Pro-Golf Tournament

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 16.—The 1935 bid-south golf title today was in possession of Orville White, stock Mscourian unattached at present to any club.

White won the 36-hole tournament here yesterday and pocketed $2531 prize money after turning in a 74-70-144 for the 36-hole play over Pinehurst's par 72 No. 2 course.

It was three strokes better than his nearest rival, Willie Klein, Whitley Hills, N. Y., who finished second with 147. Tommy Armour can third with a 146.

Second money was $300 and third $15.

Cher top finishers in the order named were: Willie MacFarlane, Tuxedo, N. Y., and Dick Metz, Chas. 130; John O'Brien, Noror Corn., and Ed Dudley, Philadelphia 151; Ralph Beach, Gene Kues, Bobby Cruikshank and Ray Manero, 152.

Layton Will Attempt To Halt Welker Cochrane's Rush In Billiard Tourney

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Johnny Layton, the deliberate shot-maker from Sedalia Mo., will attempt to halt Welker Cochrane's rush to the world three-cushion billiards championship.

Layton tackled the San Francisco wizard, who already holds the 182 balkline title, while Allan Hall of St. Louis meets Tiff Denton of Kansas City, in the other night affair. Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, and Willie Hoppe, of New York, the only players with chances of overtaking Cochrane, were listed for afternoon appearances.

Thurnblad was matched with Otto Reisel of Philadelphia, while Hoppe's foe was Jay Bozeman, youngster from Vallejo, Calif.

At the rate Cochrane operated last night in smothering Bozeman 50 to 20, for his sixth straight victory, Layton will have his hands full.

Layton showed flashes of his best form in defeating Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, 50 to 38, in 53 innings. He played carefully, leaving the Chicago scowpaw little.

Kinrey Matsuyama, tiny Japanese from New York, finished his tournament schedule in victorious fashion defeating Denton, 50 to 45, in 57 innings. Matsuyama had to come from behind, but displayed some of the most brilliant shooting of the tournament.

Hall also reached top form, overwhelming Reisel, 50 to 28, in a 39 inning match.

Victory Gives Tri-County
League Championship to Sebring

SEBRING, Nov. 16.—Sebring High school griders are perched on top of the Tri-County league today after defeating Louisville 7-0 yesterday to gain the league championship.

Sebring pushed over its lone touchdown in the second quarter when Iddings smashed off tackle from the Louisville 6-yard line and raced over the goal line standing up. Smith added the point with a place kick.

Louisville threatened to score shortly after the Sebring tally but their threat was halted on the 4-yard stripe.

The Sebring griders piled up 7 first downs during the contest as compared to 3 for Louisville.

Warns Farmers To Remove Seed Corn

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 16.—Agricultural Agent Walter L. Black cautioned farmers in Clinton county's rich corn belt today to remove seed corn from the fields immediately.

Unless this is done, Black said, most of it will be lost because the corn is in such condition it would not withstand a severe freeze. He advised farmers to place the corn in brooder houses.

80,000 People To See Army Attempt To Stop Notre Dame's Legions

Unbeaten Record of Syracuse in Jeopardy as It Mixes
With Colgate; Nebraska-Pitt Game
Is Puzzle to Pickers

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The football legions swing into action today with top billing given to the Notre Dame-Army game, in New York, where 80,000 persons were expected to see the cadets attempt to stem the Irish.

Marquette, with definite Rose Bowl aspirations, was darning Pop Warner's Temple team to smear its untied, unbeaten record, while down in North Carolina the high-scoring tarheels of North Carolina university, also with one eye on the Rose Bowl, tangle with a Duke team ready to give everything for a victory.

In Jeopardy
The unbeaten record of Syracuse was in jeopardy with Andy Kerr and his Colgate Red Raiders in the offing. Dartmouth was expected to keep its unblemished record intact against Cornell, as was Princeton, which planned to send a substitute team against Lehigh.

Holy Cross, unbeaten but tied by Manhattan, had a breather in Bax.

The Nebraska-Pittsburgh encounter was giving the pickers plenty to ponder over with many of the experts of the opinion that Pittsburgh would have to duplicate its performance against Army to get by.

Ohio State, with the nightmare of Notre Dame fading into the background, faced Illinois, Michigan was set to test the vaunted power of Minnesota, unbeaten and untied. Chicago, with Jay Berwanger a doubtful starter, faced a tough assignment in Indiana.

Purdue and Iowa looked like a toss-up.

Meets Wisconsin
Northwestern, which last week proved a banshee to the fighting Irish, met Wisconsin; Kansas State, Oklahoma and Washington university, Missouri.

Arkansas encountered the stout kicking Mustangs of Southern Methodist, another undefeated, while centenary faced Baylor, Rice met Texas A. and M. and Texas Christian met the University of Texas. Texas Christian is also unbeaten and untied.

California meets the college of the Pacific and Southern California meets Washington State. Stanford meets with Montana; Colorado State encounters Utah in the Rocky mountain conference, and Utah State and Brigham Young clash.

Back to Power
Alabama, back to its old-time power after a period of early season indifference, faced Georgia Tech, Louisiana State met Georgia, Tulane battled Kentucky and Tennessee and Vanderbilt had an issue to decide.

Other southern games were Auburn-Oglethorpe, Florida, Sewanee, Centre-Mississippi, Maryland-Washington Lee, North Carolina State-Richmond, Virginia Poly, Virginia Military Davidson and South Carolina-Furman.

In a game last night, Captain Harry Deming of George Washington State, who had been out of action for some time, returned to the field.

Salica gathered all of his wambs strength in the ninth round and slayed in with one intent, to land a knockout punch. He shut both hands to the jaw with all the power he could muster, backed Escobar to the ropes and kept drilling.

Stalls Outburst
He kept up the barrage through the tenth and part of the eleventh but the Porto Rican took everything without blinking and finally stalled the outburst with savage body blows that sapped Salica's remaining energies.

The Garden was less than half filled with an official attendance of 8,077 and gate receipts of $18,460.49. It was a return match. Salica having been awarded a questionable decision in their last encounter.

Prize Bull Is Bet
Between Governors

DENVER, Nov. 16.—The governor of Colorado is willing to bet the governor of Utah a prize bull that Colorado State Agricultural college will beat Utah university in football today.

Ed C. Johnson, Colorado's brawny chief executive, made the offer today in a telegram sent to Gov. Henry F. Blood of Utah.

He invited the Utah governor to be his guest at the game and suggested to Governor Blood to "bring your bull along."

Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa staked a prize hog on the outcome of the Iowa-Minnesota game last Saturday and had to "pay off" to Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota.

As a result rambling charges were filed against the Iowa executive by Virgil Case at Des Moines. A court hearing will be conducted this Monday into the motives which prompted Case to bring the charges.

O.S.U. President Is Honored

GEORGE WRIGHTMIRE
PRESIDENT OF OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS—George W. Wrightmire this week completes 10 years as president of Ohio State university, and the largest student body in the history of the school is helping to celebrate the anniversary.

President Wrightmire's achievements are all the more notable, because they have come in his home state—proving once again that a prophet can win honors in his home country.

He was born in a little charcoal furnace town of Lawrence county, and taught country schools near by. For smooth to earn funds for his college education. Coming to Ohio State as a student in 1889, he has been closely associated with the university almost continuously since that time. Scores of Columbiana county young people have come under his influence in these years and have the highest regard for him.

In his student days the southern Ohio lad was noted as an athlete particularly in football and track, and later he became Ohio State's graduate manager of athletics. In 1912, as president of the athletic board, he conducted the campaign to secure admission of Ohio State to the Western Conference.

When President William O'xley Thompson resigned in 1925, the board of trustees called upon Professor Wrightmire of the law college to become acting president. During the next few months the board painstakingly studied the qualifications of 40 leading U. S. educators. In the end they decided that the best of all was already on the job, and the word "acting" disappeared from Mr. Wrightmire's title.

The new president started immediately on a program of "personalizing" education—bringing closer relationships between student and teacher in the nation's sixth largest university. He succeeded to a marked degree. And his achievement of his regime has been the opening of cooperative dormitories, to bring university training within the reach of Ohio students who could not otherwise afford it.

ROGERS, Ark.—Cowboys at a rodeo here had been making excellent showings at roping steers until an 1,800-pound animal burst through a fence and across a field. It took a dozen cowboys an hour to subdue the steer.

Governors' Hog Bet Backfires

Serio-comic legal entanglements involved Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa when he was charged with gambling after delivering a prize porker to Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota in payment of his losing bet on the Iowa-Minnesota football game. Virgil Case, crusading Des Moines editor, brought the charges after Governor Herring had delivered the hog to Governor Olson's office at St. Paul, above. One solution suggested was that Governor Herring permanently remain in Minnesota where he was immune from extradition since such action would have to be taken by Olson or Herring himself.

Charles Laughton and Clark Gable in "Mutiny on the Bounty" showing at the State theater Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the State theater presents "Mutiny on the Bounty." In the annals of the sea there is no more fascinating story than that told of the "Bounty" which sailed from England in 1787, bound for Tahiti, for bread fruit, to take back to England. The ship was in charge of Lieutenant Bligh.

In the film this role is played by Charles Laughton, a harsh master. Storms lengthen the voyage, food runs low and as Laughton's temper increases he rages more and more at his underfed and embittered crew. The golden days that follow their arrival at Tahiti quiet his men, but shortly after the start of the return voyage Laughton's tyrannical brags rebellion to the breaking point and his men rise in mutiny.

Engineer Mutiny
Young Roger Byam, Franchot Tone, sails on the "Bounty" for his first cruise as a midshipman and from the first is disillusioned about sea life. He becomes a firm friend of Christian, first mate on the ship, portrayed by Clark Gable. On the return voyage Christian leads the mutiny. Laughton and 18 loyal seamen are set afloat in a small boat while the mutineers sail back to Tahiti to seek refuge with the native girls they made their wives during their stay on the romantic island.

From Tahiti the men set sail, fleeing from the British government. They land at Pitcairn island, burn the "Bounty" and settle down with their native wives. To this day descendants of these seamen live in primitive style on the island of Pitcairn.

Thursday only Paul Muni's new picture "Dr. Socrates" will be shown. Ann Dvorak appears with Muni.

"Hands Across the Table" is the picture scheduled for the State Friday and Saturday. Carol Lombard and Fred MacMurray star in this sophisticated story of a man-curse. Miss Lombard, who is out to get a wealthy husband.

Finds Adventurer
In Fred MacMurray she thinks she has found the answer to her dreams, only to learn that he is not the wealthy man she thought, but an adventurer seeking a wife with money.

Sunday and Monday the Grand theater presents a double bill. M. C. Coy in "The Law Beyond" is the first feature and the second.
